Terry Fox Run breaks records

County events raise more than $39,000

It's about remembering.

That's what Gord Mayer said minutes after he was the first runner to complete Haliburton's Terry Fox Run on Sunday morning.

"Terry made the ultimate sacrifice," the Blue Hawk Lake cottager says. "I've run a few marathons and can't imagine doing it every day."

Mayer's fellow employees at Shawk, a graphics imaging company, also believe in the cause. They pledged $1,146 for Mayer's participation in the Haliburton event, helping Mayer become the Haliburton event's top individual fund raiser among the 125 participants.

"It's company spirit," his co-worker Gord Krull says. "Shawk is like that. They really care about employees. They're one big happy family."

Mayer says he makes a point of taking part in the Haliburton event. He's been coming up to the Highlands all his life and "it's a part of me." He's addicted to running and says, "If I can do some good with it, I will."

More than 1,000 other people in Haliburton agreed with him. On Friday, a record number of students took part in Haliburton Highlands Secondary School's event. The 350 students, most of them in Grade 11 and 12, were joined by every student at J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School. All students at Stuart Baker Elementary School, Archie Stouffer Elementary School and Wilberforce Elementary School also participated.

The 25th anniversary event also raised a record amount of money. Events Haliburton County put its heart and soul into honouring Terry Fox's memory 25 years after he began his Marathon of Hope. About 120 runners, walkers and bicyclists took part in Sunday morning's event in Haliburton including Eva Griffith, Janet Bottom and Wendy Hill.

Letter mailed fraudulently to newspaper

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

Nora Pasley wrote the letter to the editor rejecting the community's help that appeared in last week's Echo but she did not mail it to the newspaper.

She wrote the letter in anger after an individual in Gooderham questioned why the community was being asked to support her family following her husband Rich's workplace accident when it appeared the family could afford to go to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

"My children go to the Ex every year and my dad pays for it," she says. "It came back to me that if we had the money to blow at the Ex we didn't need help."

Pasley says that the main reason her family goes to the CNE is to take advantage of clothing sales. With four children, she uses the opportunity to buy clothes at discounted rates; the children don't go on any rides.

It was because her children were being maligned that she wrote the letter. "I was tired of them spreading gossip about my family while we were in a crisis situation. I was right stressed," she told the Echo. "If you're going to be like that then I don't need you in my life right now."

She hand-delivered the letter to the person who was questioning the fundraising efforts. She addressed it "To all simple minded gossipers."

"It was a personal letter. I made that clear when I dropped it off."

Later, that letter was photocopied and posted in a Gooderham business, but Pasley is not the person who posted it. Nor is she the person who sent a photo-

Sunday ride cancelled here, there & everywhere

news and events worth noting

THE SUNDAY CYCLERS is a group of diverse ages and abilities that came together to ride on the Haliburton County Rail Trail, Sunday afternoons in April and May. There had been plans to resume outings this fall, and broaden the outreach to families throughout the county to bicycle together. The present surface condition of the trail, with many loose stones and fine silt, has proven dangerous to the target audience: residents seeking low-impact active recreation, without hills or highway traffic. If you have questions, e-mail wildwoodpaths@yahoo.ca, or call Pamela Marsales at 457-1671 between 7 a.m. and 9 p.m.

Now that the nights are turning a little chilly, people will be starting to unpack all their winter clothes again. If you're a parent who discovers that last year's winter jacket or snowpants no longer fit your children, consider donating them to Keith and Frances Burns' special project. Once again they are collecting children's outdoor winter clothing. There are six drop-off points: Haliburton IGA, Stuart Baker Elementary School, J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School, Archie Stouffer Elementary School, Dollo's IGA in Minden, and the Independent Grocer's in Kinmount. The donations will be given to those people who come to Wintergreen maple syrup barn on County Road 1 in Gelert on Saturday, November 5 between 9 and noon. For more information contact the Burns at 754-1928.

Updated assessments in the mail next month

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

If you own waterfront property, you might want to be sitting down when you open your mail on October 24.

That's when Canada Post will start delivering the new assessment notices to ratepayers in Haliburton County.

"I don't think it should be a surprise that waterfront values have gone up," says Evan Brown, the municipal relations representative for the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation. "Waterfront is in high demand and people are paying tremendous amounts for it."

MPAC is often a four-letter word at lake association meetings since high assessments translate into high taxes.

But Brown doesn't want people to shoot the messenger.

"All MPAC does is value property and our primary goal is to do it accurately," he said. What governments — provincial and municipal — do with that assessment is beyond his control.

Several years ago Ontario moved to market value assessment. Every year property is valued at what a willing buyer would pay to a willing seller in today's real estate market.

Last year the province gave property owners a hiatus. This allowed MPAC to do a better job in making sure that its assessments are a proper reflection of property values, but the one-year break also gave properties an extra year to go up in value. Some local politicians are predicting a 30 to 40 per cent hike in waterfront property values.

When people get their assessment, Brown encourages them to read over all the information thoroughly. The package has been revamped to make it easier to understand. If people have any questions he encourages them to either call the toll-free number provided in the package or visit www.mpac.ca. He says the section called "About my property" is of particular help in finding out what similar properties are selling for.

Put a cap on property value increases: council

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

There needs to be a cap on property value increases so that families who have owned their cottage for years aren't forced to sell because they can't afford the property taxes, Highlands East council says.

"We all know this has to stop. It can't go on the way it is," Deputy-reeve Bill Howe said of rising waterfront assessments at Tuesday's council meeting.

However, Howe later played the devil's advocate when he debated the issue with Councillor Rick Forget, who owns Montage Real Estate. Howe said the high property values are the result of real estate agents pushing up the prices.

Not surprisingly, Forget disagreed. Many times, he said, "when I walk into the house and give them the value, they're the ones who want $40,000 more or they'll get another realtor."

The surge in assessment on waterfront properties is hurting families who have owned a cottage for a generation or two. Many want to pass the cottage on to children but can't afford to. "It's not their fault that their cottage is now worth $300,000 or $400,000."

"The families that bought a generation ago don't necessarily have access to these funds and I see them being pushed out," Forget said.

Howe said, "If they're not interested in $250,000 [from selling their properties] then taxes won't bother them."

Forget disagreed. "The fact that they can sell and make money is irrelevant."

"Have you ever seen something destroy tradition faster than the dollar," Howe responded.

The discussion was prompted by a letter from Lorrie Saville, the president of Glamor Lake Cottage Association.

Glamor Lake is a member of WRAFT, Waterfront Ratepayers After Fair Taxation.

In 2005, the Crown agency responsible for assessments, MPAC, put a moratorium on increases. Many waterfront owners and politicians are worried there will be a 30 to 40 per cent increase in values this year.

"If this happens," Saville wrote, "it is our hope that council will give serious consideration to any increase in the local levy."

Glamor Lake will continue to lobby the province "to seek a more appropriate mechanism to the current annual cycle of high waterfront assessment increases. Options could include capping the annual increases, averaging values over a fixed period of time (as promised with the introduction of market value assessments), providing property tax levy options to local municipalities for services provided or a whole new mechanism to the volatile market value scheme.

"Changes must be made to mitigate the very high assessment increases that bear no relationship to a resident's personal income and therefore their ability to pay property taxes."

Welcome to Haliburton

On Wednesday night, the 28 Canada World Youth participants from Canada and Kenya, including Marta Alphonso of Winnipeg and Gerosa Sipantol of Il Ngwesa, Kenya, arrived in Haliburton for their two-and-a-half-month stay. They were greeted by host families and community well-wishers at St. George's Church. Throughout the next weeks the participants will be volunteering at several locations before they head off for Kenya in December.

There's still some resistance to calling 911 for medical emergencies in Highlands East

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

People in Highlands East may get a faster response to a medical emergency by calling the fire department's first response team directly, but that doesn't mean they'll be getting the care they need any faster.

"Some people have the perception that the old system is more efficient," says Fire Chief Don Middleton. "Getting the help there faster is true. Getting the help they need, it's longer."

Middleton says some people are choosing to call the fire department instead of 911 because they know the firefighters will get there sooner. If they call 911, the dispatcher will send the paramedics, who in turn might call the fire department for assistance until they get there. If people call the fire department first, the paramedics will be delayed because the onus is on the firefighters to call the paramedics.

While it's very important for people to get help immediately, the stress should be on getting to the hospital as soon as possible. Firefighters are limited in the medical help they can provide.

"The doctor's care is what the person needs," Middleton says.

He would like the old numbers to be discontinued but only once he can be assured that people stop phoning them.

Meanwhile, it continues to be a busy year for the Highlands East Fire Department.

The volunteers responded to 25 calls in August, including six fires. Most were woodlands fires or caused by downed hydro lines.

So far the department has responded to 151 calls this year.

The department received a glowing letter from Marlene Robertson, whose husband Steve is still in a Toronto hospital after suffering a major heart attack.

"Sincere thanks to our Wilberforce volunteer first response team," she wrote. "Your immediate response, dedication and caring attitude make our community very proud. You have our deepest respect for your professional assistance."

"We will always be incredibly grateful for your expertise in saving Steve's life."

In other fire department news, Fire Chief Don Middleton said several firefighters are upgrading their training.

The department is short two members. Gooderham fire captain Richard Pasley almost lost his arm in a workplace accident. John Windeyer of Wilberforce has been accepted into the Canadian Armed Forces and will begin training at CFB Trenton.

"It's bad for us, good for Canada," Middleton said of Windeyer's departure. "I'm sure John will do well and do the municipality proud."

Councillors have declared October 6 as Fire Services Recognition Day. It's the day of the Great Chicago Fire.

Healthy employees are good for business

LANCE CROSSLEY

Staff Reporter

A newly-formed committee in Haliburton wants to make local businesses healthier and more stress-free.

The Community Wellness committee, which is funded by the province's Health for Life program, plans to engage local businesses in the coming months to focus their efforts on building healthy work environments.

Business owners have traditionally ignored the health of their employees, seeing it as an issue unrelated to the bottom line and ultimately as a responsibility of the worker. But with mountains of evidence illustrating the cost of not providing employees a healthy workplace, at least some companies are ever so slowly having a change of heart.

"All the research that's coming in means it's getting harder and harder for employers to ignore it," says Stephanie Ratz, a Haliburton native who is a health promoter with the Lindsay Health Unit. "If they want to remain competitive with other organizations, this is one way they can do it. It's just about getting across to the employer that it's to their benefit in the long run."

Stress is one of the primary causes of employee absenteeism and costs Canada $8.6 billion per year, Health for Life reports. It also reports that Canadian workers with a high degree of conflict between their work and life are absent an average of 13.2 days per year, compared to the 5.9 days of those with a low work-life conflict. Statistics like these motivated B.C. Hydro to carry out an internal cost-benefit analysis over a 10-year period, which showed implementing a workplace health program returned a $3 saving for every dollar spent on the initiative.

LANCE CROSSLEY/ECHO

Health promoter Stephanie Ratz says employers can no longer ignore the health and well-being of their workers. Job stress is one of the leading causes of employee absenteeism.

These are just some of the reasons why Ratz initiated the Community Wellness committee this past spring as part of a contract she completed under Health For Life. The committee has just been approved for $4,200 over the next two years to help continue its activities in the community. For Ratz, the challenge is to broaden the perspective of employers.

"There are tons of reason why it's important. For the employer, you're looking at increased productivity, profits, and morale. A decrease in absenteeism. Plus, you get a reputation out of it. It's a good way to get and retain the best employees."

Some businesses are afraid putting resources into a workplace health program will cost too much time and money, but Ratz says costs can be minimal. Employers can help foster healthy lifestyles by running an internal "quit smoking" contest for employees or by starting a walking club for lunch and breaks. Those willing to spend a little more can provide discounts for a local fitness centre or even provide lockers and showers on site to encourage activity before work.

Employers can also strive to reduce work-related stress by allowing flexible work schedules, implementing a gradual return-to-work program following maternity leave, and allowing parents to call home to check up on family. In short, the idea is to make the workplace a less hostile and more attractive place to inhabit.

One of the first goals of the Community Wellness Committee is to launch healthy workplace awards for Haliburton County. Similar initiatives have been taking place in Kawartha Lakes and North Cumberland for the past three years and are run in conjunction with their respective chamber of commerces.

Ratz thinks there are already worthy candidates within Haliburton, citing Patient News Publishing as an encouraging local example of a company trying to build a reputation on a healthy workplace environment.

For more information on creating healthier workplaces, contact Stephanie Ratz at 1-866-888-HKPR or email at sratz@lindsay.hkpr.on.ca.

Summer carnival may be extended

LANCE CROSSLEY

Staff Reporter

The following are brief reports from the September 12 Dysart et al council meeting.

The Rotary Club's Jim Henwood came before council to ask about extending the summer's annual carnival from a one-day affair to a two- or possibly three-day event.

Henwood is interested in prolonging the carnival because it keeps tourists in town longer. It would also serve as a safeguard should there be a rainout on the day of the carnival. While the Rotary Club has not come to a consensus on how many days to run the fair, Henwood wanted to see if it was even a possibility to use Head Lake Park for more than one day.

Council said the calendar was clear for the week after the August long weekend, when the carnival is usually run, but requested more information before giving final consent. Reeve Murray Fearrey was concerned about the effect of leaving big rides on the grass for that length of time and asked Henwood to get a layout plan from the carnival operators.

If pursued, the carnival would either fall for two or three nights between the Thursday and the Saturday, as opposed to the present Wednesday time slot. The carnival used to be held for two days but was reduced to one because revenues were approximately the same.

Haliburton Flag

The issue of bringing in a Haliburton flag was once again tabled at the council meeting. Deputy Reeve Bill Davis restated his belief that any such flag should contain some reference to the area's history. Other councillors such as Al Ferguson supported the idea but warned that any flag design is bound to be unpopular with some segment of the population. Fearrey questioned how much real value a flag could bring to the town but did not oppose the idea.

Council will investigate whether the museum's Tom Ballantine or Fleming College would be interested in spearheading a quest to find a Haliburton Flag.

Trade show

Dysart et al Fire Chief and Operations Manager Miles Maughan presented council with a painting of a lake trout to express gratitude for council's support for the 2005 Ontario Roads Superintendent Association trade show in Minden this past spring. Maughan, who also chairs the annual event, said this year's "very successful" show saw 2,000 visitors and 270 booths.

Tourist information

Council graciously accepted a $10,000 grant from Haliburton County to continue to operate its tourist information centre. The grant will be for the 2006 fiscal year. Fearrey said the grant was a "positive thing" and that the county's objective is to get tourists into the county itself, not any municipality in particular.

County request denied

In a letter to council, Haliburton County CAO Jim Wilson asked Dysart council whether it is interested in engaging its bylaw enforcement officers in helping to patrol the county Rail Trail. Haliburton All-Terrain Vehicle Association has noticed an increasing number of unauthorized users on the trail system and the county needs help in enforcing its regulations. Council promptly turned down the request, saying it simply doesn't have the resources to help monitor the situation.

St. George's by the Lake

The municipality fulfilled a pledge it made in May of 2003 to donate $5,000 to the St. George's by the Lake housing project. Council had promised to assist the housing study, the purpose of which was to inquire about the feasibility of constructing a condominium complex for seniors on the land adjacent to St. George's Anglican Church. The condominium complex will overlook Head Lake and will reportedly have somewhere between 40 and 60 units.

Bike rack

A summer student at the Haliburton Health Unit submitted a proposal to council to help fund the installation of a bike rack in Haliburton Village.

Steven Thornton, who spent the summer researching the traffic patterns in downtown Haliburton, concluded that building an infrastructure that is friendly to pedestrians and cyclists will ultimately result in less traffic congestion. In his report, Thornton cited the example of the local Fleming College campus, which, after installing its first bike rack was forced to buy a second because of the volume of people motivated to bring their bikes. Council will ask the Business Improvement Area for its input.

Burn victim is fighting for his life

MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

The man who suffered severe burns when his garage exploded is fighting for his life.

Lance Horvath was welding in his garage on Madill Road near Gooderham when a leak in the tank caused the explosion on September 9.

"He's holding his own," says his wife Cindy. "We're just taking it day by day."

Horvath has a 50 per cent chance of survival. He is receiving treatment at a special burn hospital in Buffalo, New York. He is paralyzed and is fighting an infection.

The 46-year-old father of two was self-employed and his wife didn't work outside the home. Welding was one of his hobbies.

Although the house wasn't damaged, hydro was cut off as a precautionary measure. Because the house has been without electricity for 10 days, the teenaged children have been living elsewhere and have yet to return to classes at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

"Things aren't great but we're hanging in there," Cindy says.

A breach of trust

IF PEOPLE THINK a newspaper's role is to print only what the editor believes, then they should re-read last week's story about the sentencing in the Rosalind Bagg case. Bagg's lawyer said that the Echo has misrepresented the case and maligned the paper's coverage. Do we agree with what he said? Of course not. The Echo's coverage was fair and accurate, reporting simply on what was said in court. The stories were long but a lot of our stories are long.

echo

martha perkins

The Echo often prints stories that include quotes or information the writer doesn't agree with. We don't knowingly print lies, but that doesn't mean that what people tell us is always the truth. Our role is to provide a voice for the community and the community may have opinions or viewpoints that differ from ours. If we started editing out what we didn't agree with, we would be undermining the role the media has to play in ensuring we have a fair and open society.

Last week the Echo's good faith in the community was abused. A hand-written letter by Nora Pasley, who has written letters to the editor before, was mailed to the Echo. The envelope was addressed to "Letters to the Editor." One would wonder why Pasley would write a letter telling the community that her family did not need any help following her husband's serious accident, but she had every right to do so. To not print her letter was to deny her the opportunity to respond to the previous week's story about her husband's accident and her friends' desire to do something to help.

It turns out that Pasley didn't mail the letter and never intended it to have such broad circulation. Somehow the letter, which she delivered to one household only, was photocopied and passed on. It was even posted in a local business.

Here at the Echo we were very angry, to say the least, that someone had had the gall to mail the letter to us. You don't have to agree with Pasley, who has been a vocal opponent of the Irondale asphalt plant and unsuccessfully ran for council; you don't even have to like her. But to deliberately do something that puts her in a bad light in the eyes of the community goes way too far. That's mean and hurtful.

Of course, the Echo will now have to be more vigilant about the letters it prints. We feel badly to have been used like this and will take steps to try to ensure it doesn't happen again. But there's one other lesson in this, one for all of us: never write a letter when you are angry. Just like you can say things you regret in the heat of an argument, never put thoughts to paper before you have time to cool off. Words have a way of getting away on you.

In Terry's memory

Twenty-four years after the death of Terry Fox, his self-sacrifice and courage haunts us still. Despite the pain, the loneliness and incredible exhaustion, he ran a marathon a day from St. John's to Thunder Bay to raise money for cancer research. It's no wonder that he continues to be such an inspiration to all Canadians.

This year's Terry Fox Runs made a record amount of money. About 1,000 school children in Haliburton County participated at school events, joined by hundreds more people in Sunday's annual fundraiser. Congratulations to all the participants and donors. As a nation it's the least we can do.

Taking the meaning out of words

THE MOST FREQUENT RESPONSE when discussing language, its tools and its rules, is "how boring a topic!" We are a unique species, however, because we have this ability to communicate in complex verbal ways. Yet any language is nothing more than a code that evolves so that members of that group can understand each other. If we think about it, it truly is a remarkable gift.

As with any code there must be rules. Just try to enter this game where the rules are different from the ones learned - in other words go to a land with a different language and quickly it becomes obvious that it's not possible to be a player.

Basically any group must agree on the tools (words and their meanings) and rules (grammar). In the past half century our subgroup, North America, has played fast and loose with some of these. Some common words and phrases that should convey special sincere meaning are now nothing more than almost rote expressions; however we do not seem to be replacing them with new ones.

"Have a nice day" has become one of those refrains. Decades ago a grocery chain requested its employees to say that to each customer in order to seem more friendly - the so-called personal touch. It caught on like wildfire. Now it is but a mantra we all say almost as a form of greeting. The sincerity is gone.

Lately other phrases that should be loaded with special personal feeling are being worn out. How about "I love you"? One of the shortest, most powerful phrases that is packed with a range of deep meanings, given the situation, is now becoming hackneyed. No question that grown-ups did not express the true emotion sufficiently often and the gurus began to press us all to speak the phrase more often when appropriate.

Ah, but in this day and age we have taken the expression and run with it. Recently I was back in my old stomping grounds visiting a family friend, now in her mid-forties. Her friend from school days came in for a few moments with her children for a short visit, as apparently she did once or twice each week. When they parted, just calling out to each other, instead of saying good-bye they exchanged this phrase.

Since then I have begun to hear it used casually so often that it is entering the category of shopworn. Its frequency dilutes its essence.

This abuse of our long-held codes - the words, the phrases - that have carried special personal meaning for so long continues apace partly as our public, impersonal, media usurp them. During the recent Gulf Coast tragedy, most every official, no matter how far removed from the scene or its people, began with the phrase "Let me offer my condolences." Lack of any personal involvement means that the expression loses meaning.

At other times we hear, seemingly with ever increasing frequency, words put into our common code that intend to communicate but merely confuse. When the intent and the result differ, sometimes it can be scary especially when people in positions of power enunciate, convolutedly at best, their thoughts.

Sometimes the code imprecision is just confusing; sometimes it can even be humorous. Recently I read about a landlord who published parts of letters from his tenants - parts that meant one thing but definitely said something else. One example: "I am writing on behalf of my sink which is running away from the wall."

Are we going to try to stabilize or rework our codebook or just let the muddle meander on? It's our children and their mentors who will decide.

It's just the eggs, ma'am

THE OTHER DAY I bought a gallon jar of pickled eggs from Penny, the nice lady down the line. My reason - if a man needs a reason for buying pickled eggs - was so I could take something that was both masculine and delicious to hunt camp, other than me I mean. The problem is that I'm not sure they'll make it there.

You see, now that it's here, I sort of like having a gallon jar of pickled eggs sitting on the corner of my desk. I think it's because every good western movie has a jar of pickled eggs on the bar. True, that jar always gets shot up during the big shoot out, but the way I see it, if someone commences to unload a six-shooter at me, as long as I stay clear that's one less bullet that I need to worry about. Which is also why I'm thinking of buying five more jars.

Tales from

Vinegar Hill

Anyhow, as I sat back with my boots up and a straw lodged firmly between my teeth, I thought of how some hombres might be adversely affected by the mere act of placing pickled eggs upon their desk.

Just then, the church bell chimed high noon and I opened my eyes and tipped my hat. Somewhere in the background, a lonely train whistle blew a loud high-pitched note and blue smoke rose to the big sky. Okay, so it might have been the after-effects of eating several pickled eggs, but I think you get the idea. Suddenly, and maybe for the first time, you could almost taste the ambience in my office. Literally.

I got up, opened the window, and moseyed on over to the kitchen where the womanfolk was choring. Being polite, I removed my hat and expectorated my chewing gum into the spittoon, which some danged fool had gone and filled with pretty garden-cut flowers.

Then I shifted my eyes around the little cantina. The place looked empty.

"I'll have a glass of your hardest stuff, ma'am," I ordered, as I sat with my back to the wall. "Heck, bring the whole bottle."

I threw some paper money down on the table - and prayed that the kids wouldn't miss it from their Monopoly game.

Carol wiped the counter and looked at me with that forlorn look a frontier woman gets when she eyes a cowboy she's got a terrible hankering for. But I think she knew deep down in her heart that I was buck wild - maybe too wild to tame.

"Want the purple twisty straw with your milk again?" she asked demurely, her bosom heaving wantonly.

"Cain't rightly say, ma'am," I casually replied as I went about holstering my eyeballs. "I reckon, if it's one per cent I might, thank you kindly."

I threw my head back and downed a shot of milk, and then another. The fiery liquid burned hot against my throat but I kept it down and grimaced.

"Was it too warm?" she said.

"No," I whimpered, "but could I trouble you to rustle me up some grub, ma'am?" I chewed some gum and hit the spittoon once again.

"Only if you'll quit spitting gum in my vase," she grimaced. Funny thing is, I don't think she'd been drinking.

I nodded and faced the door.

Minutes later, she served me some good hot grub, which I quickly downed with my knife and fork.

"You sure are different from other men," she mused.

"How so?" I muttered coldly.

"Well, for one thing, most other men use a spoon when eating soup," she answered.

"And here I thought this was a real thin chicken," I whooped as I slapped my thigh.

We both laughed, albeit her laugh was so quiet that you couldn't actually hear it. I quickly grabbed my hat and left before she became too enamoured with my quick wit and lanky frame. Poor thing.

"Don't you worry none missy, I'll be careful," I offered.

"Careful? I thought you were just writing a column," she laughed bravely, heaving her bosom wantonly once again.

"Yes, ma'am," I answered, matter-of-factly, "but killing a story is a hell of a thing."

I didn't have the heart tell her about my ongoing fight with editors who rustled words and punctuation and such. The truth is, I didn't think my eyeballs could take any more wanton bosom heaving.

And then an idea struck me.

"Ma'am," I suggested, "how 'bout I go sit in the tub and you scrub off the prairie dust from my back?"

"Go suck an egg," she answered.

I tipped my hat, and moseyed on back to my office. And then, maybe for the first time, I did exactly what she asked.

letters to the editor

Jesse Dickson's mother says thanks

To the Editor:

It could have been anyone of us walking along Country Road 14 on September 15, 2002. The woman who caused my son Jesse's death and shattered my life continues to legally drive the roads. Be careful.

It is with humility that I extend a huge thank you to the good people of Haliburton Highlands and their OPP detachment for the three years of work they have done to expose how Jesse Dickson came to be "found dead in the road".

From the bottom of my heart, I thank the many kind, nameless people who went to work that Sunday: the firemen, the ambulance drivers, the hospital personnel, the coroner and pathologists, the co-ordinator and the police who manned the road blocks, the detectives, the retired cops who drove me to the morgue in Oshawa in the middle of the night and the young grief counsellors who met me there, the high school teachers, public and private who spent the following days and weeks with grieving teens, and finally the parents of Jesse's young friends who privately had to take extra care with their children.

During the first year, when I thought Jesse and I had fallen through the cracks, Const. John Vince made sure that Jesse's file didn't disappear. He gently handed me over to officers Andrew Barclay, Sandy Adams, Brett Carson, Mike Bickerton and nameless others who worked diligently and efficiently.

The other "people of interest" must have had a huge sigh of relief when charges were finally laid. Too bad healing is not an option.

Finally, thanks to Martha Perkins of the Haliburton Echo for transcribing the court proceedings for all of the people who asked for information throughout the criminal process. This has saved me repeating the story over and over again.

We all deserve better. This should now be a matter for the legislature. Obviously the current Highway Traffic Act is inadequate.

Marlene Dickson
Toronto

An apology

To the Editor:

I want to extend a sincere apology to Jesse Dickson's mother Marlene for the prolonged suffering she has endured over the past three years. As a mother I hope to never experience the lifelong loss she will be left with.

Although this case has been settled in the courts, I wonder if the emotional scars will ever be healed in our community.

Brenda Coty,
Haliburton

A correction

A technological glitch in last week's letter to the editor from David Mills of the Highlands Summer Festival garbled a few of the sentences in third paragraph, for which we apologize.

The sentences should have read "The scrim was a joint effort between the Festival and the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School drama department. The cyclorama, used to project images on, was paid for and installed by the Festival. No doubt some of the revenues from Highlands Summer Festival were used by the Performing Arts Society when they upgraded the lighting and sound equipment."

Asphalt debate may be cause of tension

copy to the Echo, addressed to "Letters to the Editor." (The Echo changed the introduction to "To the Editor" because it is the paper's custom to start all letters that way.)

"The whole thing is so bizarre," says family friend Chuck Viner who is upset that someone would do this to the family. "I can't think of words to describe the disgust."

"Just because people are starting to help out, other people feel jealous because they didn't get helped out in the past," says another family friend, Tim Drew, who helped to spearhead the fundraising campaign. He would like to start a committee that responds to all emergencies in the community.

Pasley said her two grandfathers fought in World War I, her father fought in World War II and she's going to fight for what she believes in. That includes her belief that the asphalt plant being proposed for the Irondale quarry is bad for the environment and the county.

"They fought for a reason, and if I don't want an asphalt plant in my backyard that causes cancer, I'm going to say so. I'm not going to take it with my mouth closed," she says. "I speak the truth, that's why we've got as far as we have with the asphalt plant."

However, she and Viner say that some people in the community think that by opposing the plant, jobs will be lost. (They say they were told that no new jobs would be created.)

Viner says that the attack against the Pasleys is part of the fight over the asphalt plant.

Pasley was even more distressed when people telephoned her husband in the hospital and told him about the letter being printed. She had been trying to keep it from him and when he found out, she says his blood pressure shot up and they had to call in a cardiologist.

"I'm trying to keep it from him so they're actually endangering his life," she says. "They're making him go crazy down there."

She says Rich will likely be in the hospital for another month. He almost lost his arm when it got mangled in a piece of equipment while he was working at a company that makes cement. He was a captain at the Gooderham fire department.

There have been offers of help. Noah's Park held a fundraiser last weekend and firefighters from Wilberforce have donated a load of logs for firewood. (Pasley says they were going to deliver it Friday. They were unable to deliver it because of the rain which was just as well because on Thursday someone pulled up her 911 sign and threw it into the bush.) She is grateful for their help because she doesn't want her two sons using a chainsaw to cut the wood. Neighbours have also been very kind with offers of food and clothing.

Pavilion donors recognized

To the Editor:

Re: August 30th letters/"Theatre patrons wonder"

We wish to respond to the above-noted letter to the editor submitted by Kay Clark and Gail Schmidt, as we were confused by the content and thought others might be, too.

We would like to reassure those who have contributed to the building of the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion that your generous donations have always been recognized and will continue to be recognized.

A wall plaque showing the seating arrangement in the Pavilion is inscribed with the names of those individuals, families, groups and companies contributing $750. Another wall contains plaques bearing the names of those individuals and corporations donating $5,000 or more.

The $5,000 donors have always been given credit on the back of the program covers and will continue to receive credit in this fashion. All donors also have the community's sincerest thanks.

Your truly,

Haliburton Highlands Performing Arts Society

Consumers being gouged at the gas pumps

To the Editor:

We are being gouged at the gas pumps! Over a period of four days we had a 34 per cent increase in our gas prices. I bought gas in Toronto for 99.9 cents a litre and two days later in Haliburton at the Independent Gas Bar I paid $1.19.9. The next day my husband paid $1.33.9 a litre at the same station (another 14 cent per litre increase).

I was so mad that I called Independent Gas Bar and was advised that they receive no more money out of the increases since most operators are paid on a contract basis. I was also advised that this is just the beginning.

I doubt that the gas purchased by my husband was refined after the New Orleans disaster which is supposed to be the reason for the most recent gas price increase.

It's time the federal government removed the tax to pay down the debt (that is already paid), and the illegal tax on tax.

Surprise! I filled up at Independent Gas Bar Wednesday for $109.9. Are the prices coming down or are we supposed to think the government is doing something about the prices?

Run raises $2 for every Highlands resident

throughout the county garnered at least $38,540, more than $2 each for every permanent resident.

Sunday's event in Haliburton raised at least $8,500, up from last year's total of $5,000. In Minden the event raised more than $10,000 for the fourth year in a row. The 137 participants brought in $12,500 in pledges. At ASES, the students collected an unprecedented $7,750 with more pledges coming in.

Students at JDHES raised a record $3,520 while the primary students at Stuart Baker used the event to heighten awareness of Terry's cause. In Wilberforce the students raised almost $400.

The high school contributed $6,800, almost double last year's amount of $3,800. The top student fundraiser was David McPherson, who raised $250 in pledges. Katie Witthun raised $140 while 10 participants in one of Janice Rickard's Grade 12 classes raised $610 for top class honours.

HHSS organizer Bruce Griffith is very pleased with the results and the students' commitment to keeping Terry's memory alive. Even though Terry died years before they were born, teachers talk about his run and what it meant, helping to raise awareness of the event. He agrees with Haliburton event organizer Andy Salvatori that the media coverage surrounding the 25th anniversary of Terry's Marathon of Hope has contributed to the heightened sense of wanting to contribute to the effort to fight cancer.

Nancy Ballantyne was 20 when Terry Fox started his run across Canada in the hopes of raising $1 from every Canadian. She didn't pay the run as much attention then as she does now. She and her husband Greg Karaguesian watched the Terry Fox movie with their daughters Jessica and Claire. The movie helped to inspire all of them.

"I'm a slug," Ballantyne laughs, "so I thought I'd better get out and do something."

The two young girls took part in the school event and were back on Sunday morning, joined by the two Canada World Youth participants who are staying with them.

"He must have been a good person," says 21-year-old Saaya Karmushu of Kenya, another CWY participant who joined his host family on Sunday. Saaya said he wanted to get involved "for the benefit of all sick people."

"It's an overwhelming response," says Salvatori, whose mother died of the disease.

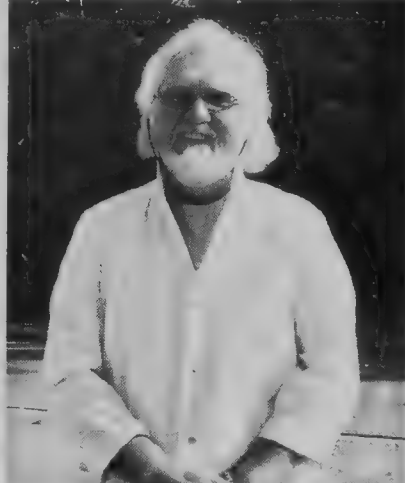

The oldest participant was Ruth McAree who walked a portion of the Head Lake Trail.

Fledgling Red Hawks getting down to basics

DARREN LUM

Staff Reporter

Coach Karen Gervais is looking forward to her second campaign with the Haliburton high school junior girls basketball team.

Optimism is high despite a difficult growing year for the 2004-05 campaign.

The team registered one win (and nearly a second win) against St. Thomas Aquinas Titans.

Her team is ready for success because of solid core of second-year players. And from what she has seen in workouts, the girls have shown great chemistry, working and playing well together.

The team's returning juniors are Rachel Morgan, Ashleigh Schollig, Brooke Hamilton, Meghan Bottum and Brandi Reid.

She adds the players have shown strong athleticism.

Thus far in training the team is keeping it simple and not looking beyond their skill levels.

"We're going back to basics," Gervais says.

The girls' basketball program suffered a blow with the loss of its senior team because of a coaching void. The coach isn't quite sure how the team will be affected by the senior team's absence. The greatest benefit the elder team had was that it gave the juniors a visual example of how to play.

Junior girl basketball players work on perimeter passing and defense drills in their first week of workouts.

"We'll focus on what we have. We'll focus on the basics," she says.

Gervais said last year's senior team MVP Michelle Neumann has shown interest in assisting the juniors.

Currently there are 15 players working out with the team in the first week of pre-season training.

Gervais wants all players who come out to be on the team. She promises to not cut anyone except for those who don't want to be on the team.

"They'll cut themselves for not coming out to practice and not showing a commitment to the team," she said.

The team's first home game is scheduled against Fenelon Falls Secondary School Falcons on Thursday, Sept. 29. All games begin at 3 p.m. Check with the high school as games are subject to change.

Ultra marathon a test of fitness, will

BEVERLEY AZEVEDO

Special to The Echo

I recently decided to run the ultra marathon at Haliburton Forest. I have been a cottager for 40 years of my life and a runner for the last 15 years.

As a child I would run on the cottage dirt roads and trails in the beautiful Glamor Lake area. In Grade 5 and 6 I joined the cross country team. Then the running stopped. Life and raising a family took up most of my time. As I approached 30 I decided this would be an appropriate time to try get back into the old running shoes to see if I can get into my routine of running again.

Well 15 years later I have gained momentum, and endurance. I'm not competitive; I run mainly for the soul. When I do my weekly long runs, usually with my friend (who motivates me), we talk, we complain, we laugh, and enjoy our surroundings winter, spring summer and fall.

Having completed six "half marathons" and running what I thought were "trails" at the cottage, I was sure I was ready to do a 25k ultra marathon trail run in the Haliburton Forest. After all, I've trained and how hard could that be? Besides I have been training on cottage roads for years - sure I'm ready!

So I called up my friend (who is a much more disciplined runner) and invited her up to the cottage to run the beautiful trails of the Haliburton Forest. She quickly agreed.

Excited about seeing Haliburton Forest from inside on the trails rather than just driving through it was an experience for me. The temperature was great, the sun was shining, I felt good, everything was perfect.

We started promptly at 9:00 a.m.. The run began on well groomed dirt roads for about the first 15 minutes or so, and then the trails started. Easy! (So I thought).

We got onto the first real trail. It was absolutely beautiful. The trail then turned into steep hills which was a little eye opener and a heart racer. It was a little challengserious business; these people are lean, mean running machines.

While chatting with some of the runners as they politely passed me by with words of encouragement I thought this was certainly a run I can scratch off of my to-do list.

Two hours into the run, I learned that it was okay to walk up the steep trails and a half hour later I learned too that it was okay to walk down the hills. I met up with a few people that were at the same pace as me. We chatted and enjoyed the beauty of the forest as the sun pierced through the trees, reflecting light off the little lakes and ponds. I also took in the smells of the forest and noticed the hint of fall in the air.

About three hours into the race I found myself by myself. Alone in the Haliburton Forest, and with no one looking I decided to walk. It was wonderful, I was just enjoying the trails and listening to the sounds of the forest and taking the time to think my thoughts, something I usually don't have time for.

Then reality set back in as I approached the final stretch of the race. I decided it was probably a good time to run again (just for appearance.) It hurt a little - who's kidding it hurt a lot - but I persevered and put on a straight face for the finish line. My friend was waiting for me at the end with words of encouragement. I crossed the finish line and graciously received my medal.

Continuing to try to hide the pain, we shared our stories about the run. It was an experience I'll never forget and will never regret. But I think next time I will walk the trails and take my camera so I can see the things I may have missed.

Ultra marathon runners were still smiling when this photo was taken by Rene Gameau ing but nevertheless I did it. Runners passing by me, I was ever so determined to keep running and climbing.

About a half an hour into the run it hit me: there's amazing scenery but these are tough trails. I realized about an hour into the run that this "trail running" was

Highland Storm County League gearing up for 2005/2006 season

ROB MEYERS

Special to The Echo

The 2005/2006 County Hockey League is in the planning stages for the upcoming season. If you missed or haven't registered as of yet, the County League is open for girls and boys age 3-14. You may contact Rob Meyers (457-3815) or visit www.highlandstorm.org for information on registration. The league is currently seeking volunteers to coach and assist coaches. Trainers are also required for each team this season. If you are interested, please contact me as soon as possible.

Starting day is Saturday October 1 at the Haliburton arena. Registered parents and players will be notified on the time of their opening practice during the week of September 19-23. The practice schedule will be given out at that time for the first two weeks while coaches are selected, teams are arranged, and the schedule for games and practices are finalized. Opening game day will take place on Saturday October 15.

Through the game of hockey, the County League provides an opportunity for girls and boys to develop their skills in a positive, supportive, and fun environment provided by the parents, coaches, and volunteers that comprise the league. The County League's objective is to make every player feel that she or he is an equally important and necessary part of the team. Character values such as teamwork, respect, effort, and fair play are emphasized throughout the season.

The league is both developmental and recreational. Many players go on to play rep hockey for our Storm teams after developing their skills and passion in the County League. At the same time, many players choose to continue to play within the County League where they enjoy the lighter schedule and reduced travel. County League players play and practise in either Haliburton or Minden. As well, a total of three games are scheduled in Wilberforce.

Runners tackle 100 mile challenge

by HELEN MALMBERG

A record number of runners from as far away as Ireland, New York City, Ohio, Virginia, Victoria B.C., Vermont, Pennsylvania, Quebec, Calgary toed the line at Haliburton Forest's Base Camp, on Saturday, Sept. 10 at 6 a.m. for the 12th Annual Haliburton Forest 100 mile Trail Run. After a prayer by race director Helen Malmberg, 167 runners were piped down the yard by bagpiper Jim Bousquet, who also ran 50K.

Thirty-four runners were competing in the 100 mile race. They had 30 hours to complete the rugged course. The winner was Jeff Simpkins of Keswick finishing in a time of 18.55 for a new course record. The first woman was Susan Bachre of Virginia, USA completing the course in a time of 27.05. Following close to Susan, was Sharon Zelenski (formerly of Cardiff) with a time of 27.51.

The last man to finish the 100 mile race was Rolly Portelance completing his 70th 100 mile race.

Jim Orr of Toronto won the 50 mile race in a time of 7.52. This was Orr's first 50 miler and first trail race. Jim went out later to pace Jeff Simpkins to victory. The first male over 50 was Kim Vardy who completed the course in 9.43. Krash Vardy, Kim's son, also ran the 50 miler to commemorate Kim's 50th birthday.

Pat Sommers of Kitchener was the first woman across the line with a time of 9.30. Local runner Jason Glecoff completed the 50 miler in 12.16 and said he would return again next year.

The 50K race was won by world class ultra runner Clark Zealand of Lindsay in an outstanding time of 3.59. Marianna Prez was first woman in 4.1.

This year a new 25K course was introduced which brought 47 runners to the start line. Pierre Mikhail of Lake of Bays won in a time of 2:38. Following close was the first place woman, Susan Hutchinson of Ancaster in 2.47.

Local visually-impaired runner Lorraine Pitt finished in 7.02. She was guided by Steve Ferracuti of Haliburton and Deb Deveau of Peterborough.

The race would not take place without the wonderful volunteers (Dan, Don, Jan, Gary, Jeff, Liz, Dan, Sharon) and sponsors. Local sponsors included Todd's Independent, Home hardware and Haliburton Forest, which allows organizers the use of the Boiler Room as Race Headquarters.

Many thanks to Peter Schleifenbaum, who permits us to use his backyard for the race, Shirley and Reg Letourneau, for their patience with the runners and Diane Kyle and her staff at the Cookhouse Restaurant who prepared and served hardy meals to fuel the runners. Don Kuzenko of Eagle Lake was a super help and also ran his first 25K.

Haliburton Curling Club Golf Tournament

On September 12 Lakeside Golf Course was the site of the annual Haliburton curlers' golf tournament organized by Paul Cameron (better known on Canoe FM as 'Lefty') and Chris Zahn, social director for the club. It was a super golf day and fun was had by all. Sixty-one golfers participated and 70 people enjoyed dinner back at the club catered by Best Bib and Tux - Richard and Carolyn Bebee of Haliburton Lake.

Paul Cameron announced the winners as follows—

Low Team with a 33 were Richard Rasmus, Don Sharpe, June Beadle

Two teams with a 34 were Keith Anderson, Brigitte Bassie, John Beadle and the team of Len Salvatori, Glenda Wakely, Bill Hare

Most honest golfers were Ken Wilson, Mary Lou Waggett, Mary Ellen Sheridan and John Glachan.

Ladies closest to the pin on hole 6 was Lorraine Forgrave

Ladies closest to the rope on hole 9 was Ariel Campbell

Men's closest to the pin on hole 6 was Paul Cameron

Men's closest to the rope was Jack Virgin

Draw prizes were awarded to the teams of Bruce Martin, Bob McNaul, John Smillie, Shirley Howse and Chris Zahn.

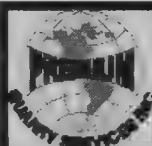

Registration for 2005 - 2006 season

An excellent start to the season was held on Thursday Sept 15 from 4 - 7 p.m. as registration took place for day, evening and youth curlers. Approximately 300 curlers are members of the local club whose executive is as follows:

President Chester Howse; Vice President Bruce Martin; Secretary Sandra Anderson; Treasurer Garry Bradshaw; Bar Chair Gary Thorpe; Bonspiel Chair John Smillie; Social Director Chris Zahn.

As this roving reporter found out, the whole crowd was very happy with the speed of registration, the spread of goodies offered, and the camaraderie of the curlers. As one member put it it was good to reconnect with old and new friends after a hot and busy summer.

New members are most welcome to join before the season starts on Monday, October 17.

A memorable day for golfers

Teams tee off for a good time at Jack Ward Memorial tournament

Good weather and good friends can have a lot of fun — and sometimes some good golfing — hitting those little white balls with those clubs that don't look like clubs. Some are so good at it they make it look easy. Last Saturday, September 17, 13 teams played and had fun in the Jack Ward Memorial Tournament at Cedar Meadows golf course beside beautiful Elephant Lake. Several teams came from the Lindsay area. Thanks to Colleen Ward for encouraging them to take part in this tournament that remembers her late husband Jack, an avid curler and golfer. There were many improvements and accomplishments during Jack's presidency of the curling club. Colleen presented the winning team with their prizes and the trophy which will bear their names. Winners were Betty Irvine, Gary Carleton, Madeline Gordon, and Murray Gordon. Louise Graham had the longest women's drive while Jeremy Jones hit the longest drive of the men. Karen Wallis and John Graham won the closest to the lake competition. Thanks to all who made this a successful tournament: players, barbecue steak dinner preparers, the many who donated prizes, and especially to Doug Stephen for putting it all together and Cedar Meadows' Mark and Michelle Smith for their generosity and assistance.

We are sorry to hear of the sudden death last week of Peter Sopranik on September 13. Peter lived on Clement Lake Road and was often seen about the village with his little dog. The dog would wait patiently in the trunk as Peter, using his cane, would make his way into the post office. Like many who live on their own he enjoyed the food at the local restaurant. Peter was a member of the Canadian Airborne Paratroopers, serving in Europe and Korea. The funeral was held on Saturday, September 17 at the Haliburton Community Funeral Home. A Legion service was held the day before. We extend condolences to his family.

Legion Week in Wilberforce kicked off with a good turnout of Ladies Auxiliary and Legion Branch 624 members at the Sunday, September 18th service at St. Margaret's Anglican Church. An honour guard was formed for those entering and leaving. At the beginning of the service, the colours were presented, followed by singing of God Save the Queen and O Canada. The Rev. Faun Harriman extended a friendly and hearty welcome to our Legion people.

The Wilberforce school newsletter is always welcome. Ms. Birdie Murphy is in her fifth year as principal. Ms. Barb Davies teaches junior and senior kindergarten. The juniors attend Tuesdays and Thursdays and usually every second Friday all day. For the first time the senior kindergarten children attend every day all day.

The school is one of a few in the Trillium Lakelands school board area to try full-time attendance. Ms. Terri-Lynn Holden teaches grades one and two. Ms. Alison Logan teaches grades 3 and 4. Mr. Mark Stamp has grades 5 and 6. Part-time teachers include Ms. Heather Paul (French), Ms. Susan Rusaw (resource and prep time), and Miss Karen Koehler (prep time). Educational assistants are Ms. Kim Mackay (full-time) and Ms. Karin Hayes (part-time). Ms. Shelley Godfrey is secretary and the custodian is Mr. Andy Lewis.

The school's Open House barbecue is Thursday, September 29 for families to meet the teachers and other families. The newsletter informs parents of various things affecting their children: where to wait for them at the end of the day (front gate), the need to watch for head lice, picture day (Sept. 20), safe arrival policy, school bus safety rules, illness or injury at school, sign-out book, snack program, special lunch days, allergies (no peanuts, peanut products, or kiwi), volunteers (criminal reference check carried out by the OPP), Terry Fox Run, cross-country meet (Sept. 20), footwear, and day planners. To all the children: have a great and happy year.

Karen Albert hosted an exciting gathering at her cottage on Grace Lake this past weekend. It was the second reunion for a number of Karen's classmates who graduated from Lachine High School (Quebec) the same year. Their first reunion in 2003 was such a success they decided to do it again. They came from places such as Kanata (Ottawa), Castleton (Cobourg area), St. Catharines, Campbellville, Burlington, Mississauga and even British Columbia. They enjoyed meals together at the cottage in Haliburton, visiting artists' studios, shopping and catching up on each other's news. Agnew's was a big hit, especially for those staying at the House in the Village bed and breakfast. The weekend ended with Day Spa treatments to relax everyone for the journey home. They are talking about coming back for classes at the School of the Arts. Always good to hear of nice times had by visitors to our highlands.

The main lodge at Camp Kakeka burned to the ground on December 11, 2004

Kakeka to rebuild burned out lodge

Many people have heard about the dramatic fire and loss of Camp Kakeka's main lodge last year. The fire occurred sometime after 10 a.m. on Saturday, December 11. No one was on property until one staff member returned to find smoke pouring from the top floor of the main lodge, above the kitchen.

Firefighters arrived on the scene promptly, but harsh winter conditions prevented vital equipment from reaching the site in time, leaving the building and all its contents completely destroyed. Thankfully, there were no injuries caused by the fire, which was likely electrical in origin.

Plans were immediately laid by the camp's board of directors to see the summer season run uninterrupted, via a temporary structure to serve as the lodge while reconstruction began.

While the building was insured, the coverage was not sufficient for complete replacement. The camp therefore began a fundraising campaign called "The Nehemiah Project" after a strong biblical leader who helped rebuild the walls of Jerusalem.

The architect's plans for the new lodge are completed and Kakeka is now ready to begin the rebuild. To kick off the project, an open house and ground breaking ceremony will be held on Saturday October 1 from 11a.m. until 2 p.m.. Everyone from the community is invited to come and see the new plans and learn about Kakeka's new vision for the future. A free BBQ lunch will be provided at noon, followed by the ceremony. The camp is 13 kilometers east of highway 118 off the Harburn Road, outside Haliburton. Mark Penman, Camp Director, can be reached at 705-754-2507 or through the web at www.kakeka.com.
